

NATIONAL JAZZ FESTIVAL

Proposed for 1990

Arts Magnet music faculty are in the midst of presenting a proposal to businesses and art groups for a week-long jazz festival to be held as a cooperative venture between the Dallas Arts District and the Arts Magnet High School. If this proposal is successful, it could mean great opportunities for both the school, students, and the Dallas art and business communities.

"The number of students and directors reached through a project like this can help build new jazz studies programs and raise the level of jazz education throughout the country. There is no other jazz festival in the US which is non-competitive and concentrates its efforts solely on education and scholarships for attending students.

As a result, the educational repercussions continue long after the clinics and concerts are over and the participants return home. "
